INTERNATIONAL NEWS

UN Declares 2026 International Year for Rangelands and Pastoralists

In a significant move to rebalance global environmental priorities, the United Nations (UN) has officially declared 2026 as the International Year of Rangelands and Pastoralists (IYRP).

Lead by the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), this initiative seeks to end the "forest-centric" bias in climate policy and recognize grasslands and savannas as indispensable tools for planetary health.

The "Green Blindness" Problem

Historically, international climate funding and national strategies (such as NDCs under the Paris Agreement) have focused almost exclusively on reforestation. This has led to the marginalization of rangelands, which cover 54% of the Earth's land surface.

Ecosystem	Primary Carbon Storage	Fire Resilience	Policy Status
Forests	Above ground (Trunks/Leaves)	Low (Carbon released on burning)	Highly Funded
Grasslands	Below ground (Roots/Soil)	High (Soil carbon stays intact)	Marginalized

Scientific & Economic Significance

The UN's declaration is backed by a growing scientific consensus that rangelands are not "wastelands," but high-value assets:

- Carbon Sinks: Grasslands store up to 30% of the world's soil organic carbon. Unlike forests, they are "reliable" sinks because their carbon is stored underground, making it less vulnerable to wildfires.
- Biodiversity Hotspots: Savannas like the Brazilian Cerrado or the African Serengeti support unique megafauna and endemic flora that cannot survive in closed-canopy forests.

- Livelihood Security: Over 2 billion people and 50% of the world's livestock depend on rangelands. Pastoralism is a highly adaptive, low-carbon food production system.

Key Objectives for 2026

The FAO and the IYRP Global Alliance have outlined a 12-month roadmap, with each month dedicated to a specific theme:

- Closing the Policy Gap: Encouraging countries to explicitly include grasslands in their Nationally Determined Contributions (NDCs).
- Securing Land Rights: Protecting pastoralists from "land grabbing" for industrial agriculture or massive tree-planting projects that can actually damage grassland ecosystems.
- Indigenous Knowledge: Elevating traditional grazing and fire-management practices as "nature-based solutions" for climate resilience.
- Economic Valuation: Shifting the narrative from "subsistence" to a "sustainable value chain" for products like wool, meat, and dairy.

Important Note: In India, this declaration is expected to accelerate the proposed National Rangeland Utilisation Policy, aimed at restoring nearly 120 million hectares of grassland currently classified as "wastelands."

MCQs on the International Year of Rangelands and Pastoralists

1. Which year has the United Nations officially designated as the 'International Year for Rangelands and Pastoralists'?

- A) 2024
- B) 2025
- C) 2026
- D) 2030

2. What is the primary objective of this UN declaration?

- A) To increase the global production of industrial livestock
- B) To spotlight overlooked ecosystems like grasslands and savannahs
- C) To phase out pastoralist lifestyles in favor of urban development
- D) To focus exclusively on the restoration of tropical rainforests

3. According to the text, why is the current global climate strategy considered "imbalanced"?

- A) It focuses too much on technology and not enough on nature.
- B) It prioritizes urban infrastructure over rural development.
- C) It provides disproportionate funding and attention to forests over other ecosystems.
- D) It ignores the impact of carbon sequestration in the oceans.

4. What role do grasslands and savannahs play in climate mitigation, according to scientific consensus?

- A) They act as the primary source of methane emissions.
- B) They are less effective than deserts at regulating temperature.
- C) They function as critical carbon sinks.
- D) They have no significant impact on biodiversity conservation.

5. Which international framework is mentioned as currently having a "forest-centric" policy gap?

- A) The World Health Organization (WHO)
- B) The International Monetary Fund (IMF)
- C) The UNFCCC climate negotiations
- D) The Global Trade Agreement
